Your Rights

You have the following rights:

- To be protected from retaliation. NC State or any officer, employee or agent of NC State may not retaliate, intimidate, threaten, coerce, or otherwise discriminate against any individual for exercising their rights or for utilizing the institution’s procedures for reporting interpersonal violence;
- To be informed of all reporting options, including an explanation of the procedures for making reports of misconduct against a student or an employee;
- To pursue criminal charges and/or a university action;
- To receive interim protective measures and accommodations, including but not limited to “no contact orders” and changes to academic, living, transportation and working situations;
- To receive information on all available resources;
- To receive an explanation of any applicable charges from NC State Police and/or Student Conduct, if appropriate;
- To have all reports of interpersonal violence investigated by EOE and/or NC State Police or applicable external law enforcement entity;
- To be free from harassment, intimidation and retaliation from respondents and others;
- To be a witness in an investigation and/or disciplinary process;
- To not have your sexual history discussed during the investigation and/or in any hearing;
- To be informed of the outcome of the investigation and any related hearing to the extent allowed under state and federal law and NC State policies.
What is sexual violence?
Sexual violence is contact without consent; for example, rape, sodomy (oral or anal sex), sexual battery (e.g., grabbing breasts, buttocks, private areas, forcible fondling).

What is relationship violence?
Relationship or interpersonal violence occurs when one person in a social or intimate relationship uses abuse to maintain power over a partner. Abusive behaviors can be physical or emotional, including but not limited to threats of self-harm or harm to others, pervasive and derogatory name calling, belittling, isolation or engaging in sexual acts while in a dating or domestic relationship when one of the individuals does not consent.

What is stalking?
Stalking is engaging in a course of conduct directed at a specific person, whether in the context of a social or intimate relationship or otherwise, that would cause a reasonable person to feel fear for their safety or the safety of others or suffer substantial emotional distress. Stalking, including cyberstalking, may include, for example, non-consensual communication, including in-person communication or contact, surveillance, telephone calls, voice messages, text messages, emails, social networking site postings, instant messages, postings of pictures or information on websites, written letters, gifts or any other communications that are undesired and/or place another person in fear of, or at risk of, physical injury or danger.

What is consent?
“Consent” means an affirmative decision to engage in sexual activity given by clear action or words. It is an informed decision made freely, willingly and actively by all parties. Behavior will be considered “without consent” if no clear consent, verbal or nonverbal, is given. Consent cannot be procured by physical force, threats, intimidating behavior or coercion. A person cannot give consent if incapacitated as a result of alcohol or drug consumption (voluntary or otherwise), unconscious, unaware or asleep during the act, under the influence of a drug to provide consent, or otherwise lacking the capacity to consent. A lack of protest or resistance is not a valid form of consent. Silence is not a valid form of consent. Consent is not sufficient to demonstrate consent. Consent can be revoked or withdrawn at any time, even during a sexual act. If consent is withdrawn, the sexual act is no longer consensual.

Protective Measures
INTERIM PROTECTIVE MEASURES
As part of NC State’s response to a report of sexual discrimination or sexual violence, NC State must provide interim measures or offer accommodations to address issues that impact reporting parties and accused party’s educational, living or work environments, regardless of whether there has been a request for formal disciplinary or law enforcement action. These interim measures can often be put in place very quickly, prior to the resolution of any report or a criminal proceeding. Examples of interim measures and accommodations available include “no-contact” orders, changes in work schedules, job assignments or classes schedules, access to counseling or other NC State resources, legal resources and support and academic support services, housing relocation, assistance in addressing off-campus living or withdrawing from courses without penalty.

CIVIL PROTECTION
You may seek a civil “no-contact” protective order (known as a 50C order). These orders are for a determined period of time. You may have to petition the court to have the time extended. A civil no-contact order is a court order that aims to protect you from unwanted sexual conduct or stalking by someone with whom you do not have an intimate or familial relationship (such as an acquaintance, co-worker, neighbor or stranger). For more information, students may contact Student Legal Services. Employees may need to contact an attorney.

CRIMINAL PROTECTION
If you had a personal relationship with the perpetrator, you may seek a domestic violence protective order (also known as a 50B order). A domestic violence protective order can help you by ordering the assailant not to assault, threaten, abuse, follow, harass or interfere with you or your children either in person, at work, on the telephone or by other means. For further information, students may contact Student Legal Services. Employees may need to contact an attorney.

RESOURCES AND REPORTING
Sexual Violence Relationship Violence Stalking
If You Have Experienced Sexual Violence, Relationship Violence or Stalking

IMMEDIATE STEPS
- Go to a safe place, such as your RA’s room (for students), a friend’s room or any open office on campus.
- Call someone you trust, such as a friend or family member. You do not have to go through this alone.
- You may want to preserve evidence. After sexual violence, do not shower until you have considered whether to have a no-cost forensic sexual assault examination at the hospital. Save the clothes you were wearing (unwashed) in a paper or cloth bag. Take photos of any damage or injury and keep communication records.

WITHIN 24 HOURS
- Seek support. You may want to turn to a survivor advocate or counselor for support or advice. They will talk with you about your options for reporting and additional support services. Please note that some advocates are not confidential and may be required to report (see Help and Resources).
- After unwanted physical contact, get medical attention. A medical provider can check for and treat physical injury, sexually transmitted infections and pregnancy. You do not need to make a formal report or press charges to receive medical care.

ANY TIME
- Consider making a report. You are encouraged to report to both the Police and the Office for Institutional Equity and Diversity’s Equal Employment Opportunity and Equal Education Equity (EEO) unit. You can decide how much you would like to participate in any investigation process. Reporting to Police is not required but ensures that the survivor receives appropriate medical treatment and tests. Reporting to either EOE and Police will ensure that the survivor has access to important resources.
- NC State can help. You do not need to make a formal report or press charges to receive help from NC State. Campus-based resources can help you with changes to your housing, classes, work and more.
