Asexuality Awareness

An asexual is someone who does not experience sexual attraction. Unlike celibacy, which people choose, asexuality is an intrinsic part of who someone is. There is considerable diversity among the asexual community; each asexual person experiences things like relationships, attraction, and arousal somewhat differently. Asexuality does not make anyone's life any worse or any better, they just face a different set of challenges than most sexual people.

Asexuality is not an abstinence pledge.
(Although there may be abstinent aces.)

Asexuality is not a synonym for celibacy.
(There are celibate aces and promiscuous aces and aces everywhere in between.)

Asexuality is not a gender identity.
(Although there may be trans, non-binary, or genderqueer aces.)

Asexuality is not a disorder.
(Although there may be aces with physical or mental conditions.)

Asexuality is not a choice.
(Although not every ace is "born that way".)

Asexuality is not a hormone imbalance.
(Although there may be aces with hormone issues.)

Asexuality is not a fear of sex or relationships.
(Although there may be aces who are afraid of or otherwise dislike sex or relationships.)
