The Chancellor’s First Year Student Leadership Program

The Chancellor’s First Year Student Leadership Program (CFYSLP) is now accepting nominations. The Program will accept 15-25 first year students. The CFYSLP is a two-semester commitment of two hours per week on Mondays.

PURPOSE

The Program seeks to identify and nurture a cohort of emerging leaders. The primary objective is to build a cadre of student leaders who are civic-minded, intellectually able, and professionally skilled, and who will become the community, business, and national leaders of the future. Participants will complete relevant seminars and workshops that address important leadership topics. In addition to the formal programming events, there will be arranged dinners and programs with both the Chancellor and Mrs. Woodson.

Who is Eligible?

Student participants are required to be in their first year at NC State. Transfer students are also welcome to apply. Students from historically under-represented groups, from rural areas and with a declared major in science, technology, engineering and mathematical fields are particularly encouraged to apply. However, all student majors are welcome to apply.
