LUNCH AND LEARN:
THE PSYCHOLOGY OF MODERN DAY SLAVERY

The Psychology of Modern Day Slavery is a short documentary film created by the American Psychological Association’s Society for the Psychology of Women (Division 35).

Feminist psychologists discuss the socio-historical, cultural, and psychological factors that have driven the proliferation of human trafficking.

This documentary also includes survivor testimony of women from the United States, Latin America, Africa, and Asia.

The viewing of the film will be followed by a guided discussion and action steps!
